VII. Glossary

1. Reserved duty station

A duty station is called a reserved duty station when there is no international staff with an appointment of one-year or more. In some cases, a duty station is also placed on the reserved list due to its specific nature.

2. Reactivated duty station

When an organization decides to field international staff for one year or more assignments to a reserved duty station, it is called a reactivated duty station. The normal procedure to reactivate a reserved duty station is to request ICSC to assign a temporary classification by the organization.

3. Temporary classification

Temporary classifications to new or reactivated duty stations are assigned by the ICSC upon request by the organizations without a formal review. A temporary classification rating assigned for a new duty station as well as reactivated duty station is only valid for a period of one year and therefore, it expires one year after the date of assignment and automatically becomes inactive. In addition, a temporary classification rating becomes inactive when a duty station no longer has internationally recruited staff assigned to it. A temporary classification is subject to a subsequent review by the Working Group for the classification of duty stations according to conditions of life and work, based on the submission of a questionnaire by the duty station within a year.

4. Transitional classification

A transitional classification indicates that a duty station is being carefully monitored by the Working Group on conditions of life and work for potential reclassification. A duty station under transitional classification must submit a full questionnaire within a year.
